REAR-ADMIRAL SAMPSON.

Sampson is dead. Now the abuse of the man should cease. Shakespeare says that the good that men do is often interred with their bones, but that the evil oft lives after them.

In modern times it is different. The good is extolled after a man's death but the evil is "winked" at.

Since the battle of Santiago, Sampson has never been the same man again. Then in the best of health, of fine physique and manly bearing, he began to go down. Step by step he went down until yesterday afternoon he passed beyond the river.

Since the victory of Santiago, Sampson has never had a friend. He was regarded as a man who attempted to steal the honors of another. The American people and the world at large condemned the man. The administration stood by him because it had placed him in command and regarded him as in command. If there had been a failure at Santiago, Rear-Admiral Sampson would have been held responsible.

In all of the vituperation written against Rear-Admiral Sampson it has never been charged that he was not in command at the famous battle. It has only been charged that he was not present at the battle and was not entitled to the honors of the victory.

The Astorian would not cast one shadow on the fame of the great Schley. But now that Sampson is dead and all prejudice against him should be buried with his body it is proper to say if there is one word to be spoken in his defense.

He was in command. The battle took place in his absence. Great old Schley, next in command, won the victory. The court of inquiry decided that Sampson was right and that Schley's claims were wrong. The American people decided with Schley.

Whatever the American people say is generally right, but they are impetuous when they think a wrong is being perpetrated. They thought Sampson was attempting to rob Schley of his glory. They did not stop to consider.

By their universal condemnation of Sampson they brought him to an untimely grave. He is dead. Now will the American people be charitable? Do not detract from the brave Schley, but give poor Sampson justice. Schley won the victory—a great one. All honors to him. But Sampson was in command. Who was the responsibility upon? If there had been defeat Sampson would have been to blame. He planned the battle. Then if his plans won, was he not entitled to share in the honors which the American people have denied him.

Grant was not at Appomattox until after the battle was over, but who has ever denied Grant the honor, though he had just as brave under officers in the field as Schley.

In spite of the controversy between Schley and Sampson there may have been greater heroes in the holds of the battleships than either.

All honors to Schley, and throw the mantle of charity over the dead Sampson!

A few days ago Mr. Edward Wright, marine editor of the Oregonian, while here, sent in an article to the Oregonian, charging the Astorian with casting gloomy prospects over the shortage in the salmon run this season for a designing purpose, and then proceeded to boom the run. Now the city editor of the same paper talks differently. He said in yesterday's Oregonian: "Salmon fishing on the Lower Columbia is running under a slow bell at present, but everything is in working order and ready to take care of the first of the big schools of fish confidently expected as soon as they arrive. The long seines are drawn every day, but not so often as they might be, and 15 salmon is considered quite a large haul. The object is to get the boat gear and men in good condition. Quite a number of shad are caught in the seines, and are sent to the market, which is now fully supplied. The roe of the shad finds more ready sale than the fish themselves, although the shad are growing in favor every year.

A local paper says that Chamberlain was nominated for governor without the expenditure of a dollar, and that it cost money to nominate Furnish. While it cost money to hold each of the conventions that nominated these gentlemen it was doubtless thrown away of Chamberlain. The chances of a Democrat in this campaign are not worth a dollar and probably the local paper presumes that the Democrats did not go to so useless an expense.

After Baby Comes.

In the days following the baby's birth there is often a long up-hill struggle to recover strength, and the nurse busies herself in the preparation of jellies and broths for the invalid.

When Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is used as a preparative for motherhood the baby's advent is practically painless, there is abundant strength to nurse and nourish the child, and a rapid recovery from the shock and strain inseparable from maternity.

"I was pleased that Dr. Pierce answered my letter," writes Mrs. C. W. Young, of 21 South Regent Street, (Lancaster, Wilkes-Barre, Penna.). "When I had those mishaps I began to think I would never have children. My back used to aching and I would get sick at my stomach and have such headaches I did not know what to do; they used to set me nearly crazy, and I used to dread to get up. I felt so bad, they I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. When baby was expected I took it all the time I was that way. I felt fine all the time, and I never got those dizzy spells any more. I have a perfect romp of a boy; he is the light of our home. I am now twenty years old and my baby is almost eight months old. I now feel well, and weigh 130 pounds and the baby 25 pounds. We feel very grateful for the good your medicine did for us. We are both healthy, thanks to Dr. Pierce's medicine."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets keep the bowels healthy.
